THE HUNGRY WORM*

worm	butterfly	lovely	dragonfly
------	-----------	--------	-----------

Early one morning, a big fat green worm was on a tree.

It loved to eat and dream.

The big fat worm ate a big green leaf. It was very hungry.

"I like to eat," said the ugly worm to a yellow butterfly.*

"I like to fly and look at the flowers," said the butterfly.

"The flowers are very lovely.* The pink rose over there smells sweet. I like flowers, and they like me.

Do not eat all the time. It is not good for you. Come with me and look at the lovely flowers."

"No," answered the worm. "You like flowers, but I like to eat. Please go and do not talk to me."

A dragonfly* listened to the worm and the butterfly. It was very thin, but it had lovely wings.

"You are a very fat worm," said the dragonfly. "Don't eat too much. Walk more and eat less."

"But I want to eat," answered the worm. "I don't want to walk." And the fat worm ate a big green leaf.

Then a yellow bird passed. He was hungry.

He looked down. "That's a big fat worm," said the bird.

The bird turned and sat in the tree. He looked at the big fat worm. "I am hungry. I want to eat that fat green worm," said the hungry bird.

Then he dived down and picked up the slow fat worm and ate it for breakfast.
