-------	--------	--------	-----------	-------

Once there was a prince. One day he went riding in the forest with a group of his friends. The forest was very thick, and he soon lost his friends.

20472

The prince was trying to go back to his home. The prince pushed and tore the bushes in the forest.

Soon he began to see light and a big palace* and he went into the palace.

In the first room, he saw many men. One man was standing near a pool. The second man was talking to a child. The third man was playing the guitar*.

The fourth man was kissing a girl and the fifth man was carrying a tray of food. Some girls were dancing. But it was all very stange. No one was moving and there was no noise.

The prince passed into the second room and saw the king and the queen. They were eating dinner. Their plates were gold and silver. Some waitresses were standing near them. Again, in this room, no one was moving and it was all silent.

The prince then went into the third room. In this room, a princess was sleeping on a silk mattress. She was very pretty. Her lips were red and she had long eyelashes*. The prince fell in love with her*.

He bent down to kiss her. Then he saw a note on the mattress. It said,

Here will she lie
Till a prince comes by.
The princess will wake
If his kiss she'll take*.

The prince wanted to wake the princess. He kissed her.

At once, the princess moved her eyelids*.

But she was very sleepy.

People in the other rooms began to move, and the prince heard them. They were talking.

But the princess went back to sleep again and the noise stopped again.

The prince kissed her again and said,

"Wake up, my pretty princess. Then we'll go to my palace and I will marry you."

The princess opened her eyes this time.

There were noises in the other rooms. The king was asking,

"Where is my chicken?"

And the waitress said,

"Coming, sir."

But the princess was very, very sleepy and she went back to sleep again. The noises again stopped. No one moved. Only the prince was awake.

The prince tried again. He kissed the princess for the third time.

The princess opened her eyes. This time she was angry. She said,

"Please go away. I want to sleep. We all want to sleep here. I don't want to wake up."

Then she went back to sleep. The prince was very angry. His kiss did not wake her up. She was pretty but she was very sleepy; and the prince did not want a sleepy wife.

He left the princess and her palace and went home.

The sleepy princess is still sleeping in her palace.
One day you can try to find her and wake her up.
